CALL FOR PROPOSALS

World AIDS Day 2020

THEME: HIV & AIDS, FEMINIST CARE, MENTAL HEALTH AND EMOTIONAL WELLBEING
APPLICATION GUIDELINES

Issues of mental health and emotional wellbeing are increasingly being discussed in African women’s rights organisations and amongst communities of women as we break the many silence on mental health and offer care for both individuals and communities. Everybody can suffer mental and emotional wellbeing challenges, but living with HIV and AIDS can bring additional stresses, in particular as a result of stigma and discrimination. People living with HIV are twice as likely to have depression as people who do not have HIV, and women living with HIV often face additional anxiety and depression that arises from the oppression women face. Some anti-retroviral drugs also have side effects that also increase anxiety and depression. With this reality, communities of women living with HIV/AIDS in Africa have worked over the years to provide community-based models of wellbeing and mutual care that continue to inspire thinking about ways to address mental and emotional health and wellbeing in accessible, affirming ways.

For World AIDS Day 2020, AWDF is awarding grants to African women’s rights organisations and groups to support activities that support mental health and emotional wellbeing for women living with HIV and AIDS.

We encourage innovative projects that will involve women living with HIV and AIDS in their leadership, design and implementation, and work. We also prioritise activities that focus on women living in hard to reach areas and difficult circumstances.

We particularly welcome applications from organisations of women living with HIV and AIDS, women’s organisations working on improving the mental health of women, and from young women’s groups.

AWDF encourages innovation- so do send in your creative ideas! Projects may include activities that;

- Use technology, arts, culture and sports to create awareness and elevate voices of African women around HIV and AIDS and women’s mental health and emotional wellbeing
Create collective spaces for care that affirm and build the confidence of women living with HIV and AIDS to speak out about their mental and emotional health

Increase the knowledge of women and young women living with HIV and AIDS to take positive measures to support emotional wellbeing and mental health

Set the agenda for addressing the drivers causing mental health illnesses in women living with HIV and AIDS

Educate key stakeholders and the community on the challenges faced by women living with HIV and AIDS in relation to their mental and emotional health

Hold duty bearers accountable for addressing HIV and AIDS and mental health and emotional wellbeing issues

Raise awareness of programme implementers and policy makers about the barriers in accessing mental health services by women and young women living with HIV and AIDS and other women managing mental health conditions

The current call is opened from 11th June to 13th July, 2020. Applicants are to send in proposals with innovative and effective strategies to address issues around HIV and AIDS and mental health and emotional wellbeing for women living with HIV and AIDS.

About the World AIDS Day Grants

Every year on 1 December we commemorate World AIDS Day, as an act of solidarity with women living with HIV and AIDS, and an opportunity to remind duty bearers and society at large to keep the focus and momentum on HIV prevention, treatment, care and support.

AWDF instituted the World AIDS Day (WAD) grants programme to support women’s rights organisations to actively participate in the global campaign and keep African women’s priorities around HIV and AIDS on the African and global agenda. The programme seeks to support women’s organisations to raise their voices and support the leadership of women living with HIV and AIDS.

The WAD programme provides a maximum grant of US$2,000 to women’s rights organisations. The activities must promote women’s rights and involve women in planning and leadership of activities.
Please follow the application guidelines below. Note that the maximum amount of grant allowed is US$2,000. Applicants must fit AWDF’s general grantee guidelines (women-led, African women’s rights organisations).
